Forecast for Saturday 26 Sep 2020

Weather: Cold but clear overnight with a grass frost likely in some sheltered spots. Skies will be largely clear through the morning, with plenty of sunshine and excellent visibilities. Very small risk of a shower, mainly across western summits through the morning. More cloud for a time in the afternoon, particularly towards the east, but it should stay dry.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: Around 90% for much of the day, but falling to around 70% through the afternoon across more eastern areas, as cloud builds a little from the east.

Visibility: Excellent most of the time, with very good views of hills 40km or more away.
